To determine whether the exposure of rats to heavy metals affects their neurobehavioral functions, we studied three rats housed in a Y-maze exposed to 0.5 ppm of lead, mercury, or cadmium. Following exposure, each rat was placed in one arm of the Y-maze and allowed to freely navigate the maze. No significant changes in the locomotor or exploratory activity of the rats were observed. However, a significant increase in the choice of the covered arm was noted for the lead-exposed animals. These results indicate that exposure of rats to heavy metals does not impair the neurobehavioral functions of these animals.Q: Extract specific strings from certain positions of a text file I have a text file which has various text being displayed in it. As part of this, I have to extract some of these strings in order to do some extra work. As they have not been sorted I am at a loss as to how to do this. This is the sample text I am working with: Version 1.2: This is version 1.2 and version 2.0: This is version 2.0 Version 2.0: This is version 2.0. My goal is to remove the version number that comes from the 3rd line onward in each instance. This is a simple process, but as I cannot find anything like this to simply parse through the text file, I am stumped. How can I best go about extracting the string from a certain position? I will be maintaining the position of the string throughout the original file, so once I have these strings, I can build on it. So, I have to get "1.2" or "2.0" or "2.0.0" A: A good way to do this is using regular expressions and the ability to capture certain groups of data. This is the regex that we need to use in Python: `\bVersion (.*)`: This is version `(\d+.`
