Organization of the gene coding for human peroxisome proliferator-activated receptor alpha in a novel locus on chromosome 15q21. Peroxisome proliferator-activated receptors (PPAR) are nuclear receptors that have been implicated in the regulation of lipid metabolism. In the present study we have used a combination of genetic and physical mapping to identify the gene for the human PPAR alpha (PPARalpha) in a new region on chromosome 15q21. A cosmid contig was constructed from human genomic DNA isolated from the IMAGE cDNA Resource Center from a genomic PAC library. Sequencing of the PPARalpha gene revealed a single gene with three introns. The PPARalpha gene spans approximately 48 kb, has a size of 4.6 kb and encodes a trans-activating protein of 652 amino acids. Using a PAC clone containing the PPARalpha gene as a hybridization probe, the gene was localized to the short arm of chromosome 15 at bands q21-q22.1. This is a novel locus on chromosome 15 and the location of the PPARalpha gene allows us to investigate the human PPARalpha gene in more detail. + 0 * y * * 2 + 0 - 1 / 1 4 0 * y * * 5 - 1 / 1 6 8 * y *
