ApunKaGames.Net.Q: Optimizing a Geocoder in Java I'm currently working on a project which involves taking a GPS coordinates and generating the corresponding latitude and longitude coordinates on a map. I'm currently using the Google Maps API for this, however since I'm running a long-running process (mainly due to the fact that I'm getting the coordinates from the GPS), I was wondering what is the most efficient way of going about it? A: One method would be to load the map into the Android UI thread (or a worker thread) in the background and in the background use the Google Geocoding API to get the coordinates. Q: Does multiple queries to the same MySQL database block the thread? I am using a MySQL database for a Java application. My question is about performance. In order to get some data from the database, I have multiple queries that I execute one after the other. Suppose that each query (let's say Query 1, Query 2, Query 3) has a query like "SELECT * FROM TABLE WHERE ID = 1" Will the thread be blocked if I 2d92ce491b
