Rockstar Games Developer Quote: "The highly compressed versions of our PC games don't perform nearly as well as the normal versions. This is because we've lowered the graphical requirements to such a point that the actual textures and models only take up about half of the onscreen memory. In order to maintain compatibility with the more powerful GPUs found in high end graphics cards, we've also reduced the draw distances and lowered the available resolution. By not taking advantage of hardware advances, we're able to deliver a competitive experience for our PC players without requiring ridiculous hardware." New GPU: For people looking to play GTA 5 on high-end dedicated gaming desktops running an Nvidia GeForce GTX 970 or above, this highly compressed version of GTA 5 is not ideal. Because at ~1.4GB, it will only allow for an inferior experience. However, this highly compressed version of GTA V will work fine with mid-range graphics cards such as the GTX 680 and 730.
