It is a remake of 2013 Malayalam movie Thattathin Marayathu. The music is composed by Anupam Amod and the film features Diljit Dosanjh, Mahima Chaudhry, Aditi Sharma, Om Puri, Darshan Jariwala and Neeraj Srivastava in pivotal roles. The film was released on 5 February 2015. Plot The film begins with a family trip to Jaipur with the marriage of Mandira and Gyan. Their children are Kunal and Ravi. Ravi and Kunal are the closest of friends. When Ravi comes home for a holiday, he meets Mandira's uncle, who later informs him that Mandira's father has been murdered. Ravi is shocked and devastated. At a function, Ravi learns from Mandira's sister that Kunal has a girlfriend named Usha. Ravi is angry and the relationship between Kunal and Usha is broken. Ravi sends Usha an SMS that he wants to meet her. Kunal and Ravi are best friends and when their parents ask them who they want to marry, they choose each other. However, Mandira's uncle is not pleased with Kunal because he is from Jaipur and Kunal wants to be a doctor in Delhi. After much persuasion from Kunal and his parents, they take him to Delhi for his higher studies. Ravi learns that Usha and Kunal will be getting married. On their way to Delhi to attend the wedding, Usha and Kunal tell Ravi that they are in love and want to marry. Ravi then meets Kunal's best friend, Samairaj who reveals to Ravi that Kunal and Mandira had fought on the marriage issue and Kunal had left for Jaipur without a word. Ravi is upset by this and tells Usha and Kunal that he has come to India to stop them from getting married. Kunal later confronts Ravi about this and apologizes to Ravi. Ravi is upset with Kunal and later apologizes to him. At a function, Kunal learns that his grandfather had died and his father is in Delhi. Kunal has changed his mind about Mandira and wants to marry Usha, but Mandira loves him and does not want to lose him. Kunal later informs his grandfather of this and the grandfather does not want Mandira to marry anyone but Kunal. The grandfather tells Mandira that
