I was amazed at this as it seemed to be a new concept. It sounded like someone had been reading a book about teenagers and had found a way to make contact with them. The radio host explained that they were not all teenagers and some might be 20-something's, but still spoke like they were teenagers. What was this called? I have just searched Wikipedia, but have found nothing. I would like to know if anyone has heard of this concept before? A: I know that on nights when the BBC has a youth programme on Radio 1, a voice called Tim Westwood is heard occasionally. Tim sounds young and has very interesting views on teens. I think he has a show on Saturday mornings. If I'm thinking of the right Tim, then Wikipedia has a page about him, and it mentions Teen Talk Radio. A: This is a real thing. There is a Canadian programming service called Teen Talk Radio, which will take calls, or broadcast individual entries about Teen Topics -- as specified by a host of voices on Teen Talk Radio (like Radio 1). This service goes back to at least 2012, and of course, the particular service you're asking about (Teen Talk Radio) goes back further than 2012. Also, though the host may sound young, the voice on Teen Talk Radio isn't always the same voice every day. From 09e8f5149f
