What's New In?

Even though it is still in a beta state, Encrypics is a robust and efficient image encoder and decoder that can be used for protecting your most important files. In addition, it offers a number of features that make it possible to work with them with ease, such as the ability to output encoded files as regular ones, allowing you to freely view them as you wish, rather than to be forced to go through the extra step of decryption first. Moreover, you can come across the Encrypics application on a USB memory drive, allowing you to run it from anywhere you wish to without worrying about your computer being infected with any application or malware, without leaving any trace behind. The application functions under the same principle as a typical image viewer. It allows you to load your photos, apply an automatic or manually selected password, and get your files back, in the exact same way as usual.

What's New in Encrypics: In addition to the already known bug-fix version, 2.4.0a, released on November 30, 2016, it has been improved with the release of the Universal Encryptors Add-on, a new Encrypting Toolbar button added to the main toolbar, a new setting to change the default password length, which has been increased to ensure it fits in 80-character passwords. I just double click on it and it unzips files and archives them, and if I choose it, it also makes a.zip file as well. The latest update is compatible with 32bit and 64bit versions. Thank you. Nice program, especially for encrypting (decrypting) a backup of my photos from my PC. It works very well. The only thing I don't like is a lack of screenshots on the program page, though, all I can see are a few images. First of all, I just want to say thank you for this great product. I have used it for years, and it is the best product I have found. I have used several, because I like it so much, but Encrypics is the best. Encrypics is an awesome software, easy to use, fast to execute, and it's a very high-quality software. I have been using it for nearly 3 years now and
