MaRaPass Support: For more information on how to use and download MaRaPass, you can visit: Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method for controlling a clock generator which generates a clock signal on the basis of a reference clock signal, and a receiver which receives an RF signal modulated by a transmitter. 2. Description of the Related Art FIG. 2 shows the basic configuration of a conventional demodulation apparatus for a received signal which is demodulated by a direct-conversion receiver of the type referred to as a zero-IF. In this demodulation apparatus, an RF signal received by an antenna is amplified by a low-noise amplifier (LNA) 1 and, after the conversion into an IF signal, the IF signal is multiplied by a local oscillation signal of a VCO (Variable-Coefficient Oscillator) 2 with a mixer 3, and the IF signal is then converted into an IF base band signal by a low-noise amplifier (LNA) 4. This IF base band signal is then amplified by a band-pass filter (BPF) 5 and a limiter 6 to a signal of a proper level and is then demodulated by a phase-locked loop (PLL) 7. A PLL phase comparator 7 compares the phase of the output signal of the band-pass filter 5 with the phase of a signal output from a reference oscillator 8, and drives a charge pump 9 so that the phases of the signals output from the band-pass filter 5 and the reference oscillator 8 will coincide. An output signal of the charge pump 9 is input to a loop filter 10, and the output signal of the loop filter 10 is input to a voltage-controlled oscillator (

Nonrandom associations among parents and children in early adolescent social networks. Although studies have documented nonrandom associations among family members in the social network of children, less is known about the pattern of these associations in adolescents, particularly the stability of these patterns as children age. This paper tests for these associations in a sample of 211 four-year-olds who were later followed up at age 12. Measures of mother-child and father-child associations were derived from self-reports of family members' social contacts over the past year. Analyses indicated that early adolescents with more mother-child associations were more likely to have close mother-child associations at age 12 and that early adolescents with more father-child associations were more likely to have close father-child associations at age 12. Stability of mother-child and father-child associations were moderate and significant.

This chapter explains the options for opening your photos on a smart device with a cloud-based app. How to open photos on a smart device with a cloud-based app: Cloud-based apps are the first choice when it comes to downloading and sharing pictures on a smart device. They stream images directly from remote servers to users' devices without the need of copying data. Transfer files with cloud-based apps: To transfer images to a smart device, you need to connect it to a Wi-Fi network and enable the Wi-Fi hotspot function. Then, you just need to download the image on your device, transfer it to your smart device, and wait until the image stream is finished. Open a folder with cloud-based apps: To use cloud-based apps to stream images from remote servers to your device, you will need to specify the folder that contains the photos. The folder can be on your cloud-based account or a local computer. Specify the folder where you want to open with a cloud-based app: The folder can be either on a local computer or on a remote server. In this case, you need to know the URL to the folder. For instance, if you want to stream the photos in folder "Contacts" on the server "myfriendsphotos.net", then the URL for the folder would be myfriendsphotos.net/contacts. Open the folder with a cloud-based app: In case the URL contains the server's name and the folder's name, the folders and images will be opened. If the folder is on a remote server, the browser will navigate directly to the folder's page. In case the URL does not contain the server's name, the URL must be put on the folder's name and the files will be opened inside the folder. However, you will not be able to navigate the folder's pages. You can only see the files and folders inside it. Add a cloud-based app to Android: To add the app to your device, you need to navigate to your Settings > Applications > Manage apps. Then, tap the search field, and type the app's name. After selecting it, tap the button to move it from your phone to your Android. Open a folder with a cloud-based app: As mentioned, you will need to navigate to the settings page and tap the "Add" option to add a folder from a remote server. The "Add" option will be available only if you have a specific cloud-based app installed on your phone. You can then specify the folder URL. Delete a cloud-based app from Android: To delete the app, navigate to the settings page, tap the search field and type the app's name. Then, tap the "X" icon. Open a folder with a cloud-based app: You can add a folder
