Autodesk product videos are video tutorials that help you learn more about each Autodesk product. For example, you can learn about how to use Powerplant and the different ways to work with it. Autodesk product videos are different from Autodesk product help articles. Autodesk product videos provide a deeper explanation of Autodesk products. The videos also provide an in-depth walk-through of a product's features. Autodesk product videos are often much longer than product help articles, which can be helpful to those of you who want more details. This tutorial shows you how to quickly and easily create a report with visuals from a SQL Server database. You will create a report of a custom set of data based on another report definition. Our goal is to show you a simple way to create a SQL Server Reporting Services report based on the data within a SQL Server database. We use a SQL Server database called FoodMartDB in this tutorial. Our initial goal is to create a table to use as a data source within our report. We'll create a table called FoodMartDBDemo and populate it with demo data. From there, you'll set up your report parameters, add your data source, and run your report. Like any report or list in SSRS, when you place data from a data source on a report page, it automatically groups items together in the report by the values in the columns of the table. The report engine automatically uses the first data row to determine the initial groupings. We want to have more than just the one row of data for our table, so we can use a SQL query to return more rows. We'll run our SQL query to return the first five rows of data for our FoodMartDBDemo table. In the last video of this tutorial, we'll use our SQL query to return the first five rows of data and add them to the FoodMartDBDemo table in our SQL Server database.

Nvn Installer is developed to install/uninstall products on your computer. Support can be contact via a email to the owner : plouhman@gmail.com. Chad French Developing a 3D Visualization System for a Paint Shop Pro Animation Studio Chad French, software developer from Rock Hill, SC, has released a new version of the popular Paint Shop Pro plug-in, named "Nvn Installer," to make it easier to install and uninstall the plug-in. In his latest application, French created a 3D visualization system that integrates with Nvn Installer and Paint Shop Pro to help create and edit the animation in the program. The goal was to make it easier to save the animation and transfer the file to a DVD. "I've been working in the computer industry for about 25 years," said French. "I've been designing computer applications for a little over 10 years. I've designed Windows applications, Linux applications, and Macintosh applications. However, I've never designed a 3D application before." A computer application has a software program that functions like an operating system, and this software program makes the computer run. An application can be for games, software, files, multimedia, or other purposes. The current version of Paint Shop Pro includes a 3D editor, and it's very good at it. When a user is creating an animation, a 3D model is created, and this model can be animated and edited within Paint Shop Pro. The new application, however, will allow the user to animate the 3D model in 3D, and then save the animated model and have it played on a DVD. Paint Shop Pro is currently available for Windows 2000, Windows XP, and Windows Vista. When the new application is released, it will be available on Windows 7 as well as on the Mac. Nvn Installer Features Nvn Installer has some nice features. One of them is that it will install the Paint Shop Pro plug-in and uninstall the plug-in at the same time, so that there will be no problem when the user restarts the computer. The application will include an uninstaller as well. When the user clicks on the uninstaller, the application will uninstall all the files, if that is the user's preference. The application will also include a reboot and exit option for the user to control what happens to the system after the
