Facebook ## Contact lite on Vimeo Q: How can I calculate the mean value of a column of different dataframes in a list? I have a df_list that consists of 26 dataframes from the same source. I need to calculate the mean value of these dataframes based on the column "A" (in the following example, the mean of the value 1 in column A should be calculated). The dataframes in df_list contain data from year 2018 and the values in column A vary between the different dataframes. I would like to use the code below to calculate the mean values.

df_list = [] df1 = pd.DataFrame({ 'A': [5,6,1,0,2,3,4,5,1], 'B': [1,2,3,1,2,3,4,5,3] }) df2 = pd.DataFrame({ 'A': [5,6,0,2,0,1,0,5,0], 'B': [1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,9] }) df3 = pd.DataFrame({ 'A': [1,2,1,3,3,3,1,2,2], 'B': [6,3,1,4,2,0,7,4,4] }) df_list.append(df1) df_list.

What's New in the Lite?

A: If you don't want to create a plug-in, you can just use the language specific syntax completion. I guess that lite doesn't include such a feature, but you can use it with vim. First download vim-lua (I took the latest version). vim -u lua_vim.so -c "let g:lua_vim_syntax_items = { }" setlocal iskeyword+=/ Put the lua_vim.so file in your.vim/plugin directory. I do this for all my plugins I write, although I don't actually use Lua that much. See :help scripting for more info on plugins in Vim.

Budget 2015: Deal on 2015 pay deal could come before Easter As 2015 pay deals for NHS staff and others are already agreed, we are told the pay agreement for teachers in England may come before Easter. MPs on the Education Select Committee agreed that the new pay offer for staff in England would go in front of the Secretary of State for Education by the end of this month, so that the negotiations would not have to be cancelled. However, the chancellor is also looking to deal with further concessions that the unions have made, and the Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR) expects him to get involved. They wrote this week: Teachers, school support staff and school leaders are facing changes to their salary structure as a result of the government's new pay framework for schools. The Treasury anticipates that the new pay offer for teachers in England will be introduced early in April 2015. It expects an unchanged pay offer for school support staff. The OBR expects the government to act rapidly on the Department for Education (DfE) proposal to reduce the discount of the final salary pension scheme for the self-employed teachers and school support staff, and to agree a new contribution arrangement for the self-employed teachers. This has come after the new chairman of the Commons Education Committee, Damian Hinds, has promised the new MPs to "listen carefully” to the views of the unions. Changes to the way schools are funded mean that about 40,000 teachers in England will have their pay frozen until 2020/21. Maggie Blancka will be working on behalf of UNISON as a UNISON economic analyst while on maternity leave.
