A: I believe you may be missing a needed Windows driver for the monitor. You're likely to have two options: Option #1: Go to the System Control Panel (Start menu > Control Panel) and open the Monitor & Display dialog. There you can change the display settings to show a list of all the available drivers on the computer. Your current display driver should be shown at the top of that list. If the "Unrecognized display device" option is listed, then you need to download and install the AOC driver from my link that I provided in my first comment below. Click on the "add" button, add the new device driver, reboot your computer and see if the problem goes away. Option #2: If you just want to get back to where you were on the "Monitor & Display" dialog, just hit "OK" when you've done with all your selections (like a reboot) and the dialog will go away and you can continue on your way. I am producing some X-Arcade games for my cousin's arcade. They are going to be both coin-op and not. For those, a friend of mine recently did amazing work that I'm using. 3da54e8ca3
