When Toronto Police released their annual report of the city's "Zero Tolerance" policing initiatives in 2017, what they didn't address was the video that went viral on social media. More than that, they didn't address the struggle of two males – a black man and a white man – who never should have been in the same room at a police briefing. The Star reported on the cases last year: A video shows Toronto police tackling a black man – who was not involved in an incident – while another man was trying to walk away at a June 2015 police briefing. The video posted online by the African Canadian Legal Clinic shows several officers – at least one of whom can be heard saying "alright, hop over the f--king fence" – grabbing at the man's clothes and eventually carrying him to the ground. The man, who is also black, can be heard repeatedly stating that he is “the motherf--king driver,” before the officers head out the door, while the man with them stands at the curb. The 18-year-old man was arrested for breach of undertaking. “The video was posted in a fit of rage over Toronto police being mean to his friend,” said one lawyer with the African Canadian Legal Clinic, which has represented the man. “At no point does the police ever accuse him of being involved in the incident. They picked him up, put him in a chokehold, and took him down for no reason.” Now, the man has been convicted and sentenced to over one year in jail. The Toronto Police Association released a statement to Metro on July 26, 2017 with regards to the video: The Toronto Police Association (TPA) met with the officer involved in this incident on Monday, July 24, 2017, regarding the incident. The officer in question wishes to address the incident and acknowledged the error in judgment in this instance. The officer takes full responsibility for his actions. As per the TPA's standard procedure, the officer involved will continue to meet with the City's Office of Independent Police Review Director, or OIPRD, to provide any details necessary to ensure a fair and thorough investigation of this matter. The TPA wishes to again emphasize that this was an isolated incident, and no further information will be provided as this incident is currently under investigation by the OIPRD. What's New In Adobe Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.3)?

As you use and reach toward the area with the wax, using your right hand, start to move your fingertips slowly down toward the chair cushion pad. Upon making contact, rotate your fingers and try to increase your "lift" by attempting to shift your hand upward. If you feel a "pop" sensation, then your fingertips are now in contact with the gel and you may be trying to lift something that is not there. Be sure to follow with the other hand as you then continue to add the gel towards your body; don't forget to "lift" and rotate your fingertips. Once all of the gel has been applied to your body, you may be able to lift your fingers off of the pads without feeling any additional pop sensation. Use both hands to "lift" at this time, as your palms should be in contact with the gel itself. NOTE: The first time you try this, it may be difficult to feel any "pop" sensation as there may already be gel in the chair cushion pad. Additionally, you may feel more "lift" with your palm. Please be patient with yourself, and give this exercise some time. The greater challenge of feeling a "pop" sensation is what is worth the effort. When trying to overcome my fear of "thinking too much," I use what is known as "Deep Breathing." I have a circle of parchment paper cut to measure from my fingertip to the end of my longest finger. It is about 2-3 inches. When I think about my breathing, I breathe into my hand. I am usually holding one end of the paper in my hand as I breathe and it causes me to relax. I had my crown molar yanked about two weeks ago and my dentist said that I had to wear a crown. I did not want one. I have tried to make myself go to my dentist to get an "award" for not having it, but I can't bring myself to go. I am afraid that the dentist will tell me "Well, we don't want to do that, we don't have to waste time and money on that." I know it is not a big concern to me now, but if I were to die, I wonder if I could just forget about it. How can I overcome my fear and get it done? I have been a dog owner all my life and this summer I have been successful in becoming more a cat owner. My cat is very well behaved and gentle and very loving
