Boss at All Costs while Trying to Protect The Witness [SUB/ENGLISH].At the beginning of July,
I received a letter by way of Facebook (unbeknownst to me) from Janice Johnson, which would later become a chat with an editor at Touchstone. The editor's name, of course, is Linwood Barclay. The editor was watching ads that I had for my book, Searching for Signs of Intelligent Life in the Universe and trying to figure out why they weren't gaining traction. The ads were for the book on the Amazon Kindle and in print at Barnes & Noble. The editor told me that one of the ads was "too religious." I kind of laughed. I said, "That's the whole reason I wrote this book. I'm not religious, but I'm interested in exploring the possibility that there is a spirit world out there that communicates with us." Janice Johnson, from whom I got the letter, wrote a couple weeks later that she took me to "heart" and wondered if I would write up an outline for the book. I initially replied, saying I would need a lot more time, although I was flattered that someone wanted to work with me on it. She later wrote back and told me that she wanted to offer the book to other publishers, and that she didn't want to hurt my feelings if I said no. I said I wasn't offended. We had just started to develop a relationship, and I was flattered that she was interested in working with me. Earlier this month, I got an email from Mr. Barclay offering to buy the book from me. He said, "I'm honestly flattered that you approached me instead of your usual publisher." Around the same time, the editor of Touchstone said
